Welcome to the RCRG wiki – a knowledge base for records continuum thinking that, as such, will be ‘always in a process of becoming’ (McKemmish 1994).

We have begun to develop the knowledge base with the migration of the reports of key research projects and the short bios of those people involved in the initial establishment of the Records Continuum Research Group at Monash. We hope to expand on this so that on these pages you will find details of Records Continuum theory, its development and use in research, education and practice, the people significant to the development of the Records Continuum body of knowledge, reports and other outcomes from key research projects and much more. This wiki is lightly structured and you will find that its pages are highly interlinked. It doesn't matter where you start – jump right in!

Questions?

What are wiki pages?

Wiki pages are user-written articles on a range of subjects. Any contributor or a group of contributors can create (and own) new articles, and there can be multiple articles on the same wiki, each written by a different author.

Who can make a wiki page?

Anyone with an account can create a new article. When creating a new article, the initial contributor can choose to have a defined list of authors, all of whom can edit the page, or have an open, wiki-like format where anyone can contribute.
